

I am writing in reference to the proposal to allow Low Power FM radio stations to take priority over current FM translator service. Our community is effectively served by K-LOVE radio stations in many, many ways. K-LOVE conscientiously works to announce local events helping draw crowds to outreach and ministry events. Until K-LOVE expanded into our West Texas market we had no Contemporary Christian Music radio station--it certainly filled that void. The public support of K-LOVE is obvious from the financial support it receives from our area. The station's operations are paid for by private donations and we have not had any problems coming up with the funding. The community has come to rely on K-LOVE as prominent member of the community and if it were displaced by an LPFM broadcaster we would experience a deep loss. K-LOVE has never failed to serve the public interest by providing a constantly upbeat message, encouraging words to listeners, and a push for us to improve ourselves and community in which we live. The programming is always family-friendly, it is a station I can leave on even when my kids are in the room. It truly reflects the values of our community.

Thank you for your time in this matter.
